The Strangest day

There are two boys named Joe and Billy. They both go to the same school Idermedit Cippawa in 3080. Billy and Joe went to the same school where the same thing happens every day. One day they were sitting in class listening to the same thing then a portal sucked the two boys in.

“What happened!” said Joe as he got sucked into the portal. “I don’t know!” said Billy in the portal. When they were out of the portal everything looked the same, but everyone was acting different. So they went to class but everyone did different things. One student walked on the ceiling as another student turned into a balloon.

“Well this is strange?” said Billy “Yes it is” said Joe creped out. When the bell rang Billy and Joe went to the next class. When they got there one of the teachers said “If you collect all seven crystals from the school you will go home.” said the teacher. Then she disappeared.

“Well that was weird” said the two boys. So they went on with their day until they saw two crystals. When they crabbed the crystals a kid turned them into snakes. The two boys said to each other “We gotta get out of here!” So they slithered out of there.

When the two boys left the room they returned to normal again. Billy and Joe figured out that the hallway was a safe zone. “I see another crystal!” cried Billy “There are three of them!” cried Joe. Joe walked in and grabbed the crystals and ran out then out of the middle of nowhere the principal appeared and tried to turn the two into bananas, but he turned himself into a banana the two kids laughed. Two hours later they found the rest of the crystals, but the crystals were in the teachers lounge. So the Two boys ran in one distracted the teachers as the other grabbed the crystals and they both ran out just in time. The portal appeared and the two boys went home. When they got there they told each other "That was the strangest day ever!"
