

Candy Spree
Written By: Kamden Pamer

I want it!

One day there was Son and a Dad. They woke up and the Son wanted candy yelling Jacky and the Dad named Eddy said NO so Jacky the son ran outside and it was noon now and he needed money for candy.

An hour later he thought of three plans to get money first he tried mowing lawns but the lawn mower was broken second he tried selling cookies but he's not a good baker at all third he opened a book reading club up and to join it would cost 5 dollars but none wanted to read in his book club.

Then he opened a lemonade stand and 1 dollar for the lemonade and he got 50 dollars for candy so he ran downtown to the candy shop and got a lot of candy and then he ate it all up and got home and went to bed and he woke up.

Finally he looked out the window and to His surprise His lemonade stand was broken into many pieces and he thought who would of did this so he went outside and His Dad was there sitting on the porch he said did you smash my lemonade stand the dad replied no I would never said the Dad Jacky was spectacle but he did not think to much of it so he went inside and he saw his Dad smashing it even more than before so he ran back to his Dad and the Dad got caught and that's how this story ends.